GENERAL TERMS Twelve bulbs will be sent for the price of ten.

Two half size bulbs blooming size will be sent for price of one large one.

One package bulblets varying in number according to scarcity of variety will be sent for price of one large bulb of that variety.

All orders for bulbs per each, or dozen rate, and bulblets will be sent prepaid.

One hundred bulbs of a kind will be sent for seven times the dozen price. Express charges collect.

If you do not have any particular choice and will leave the selection to us, we will send you 50% extra in bulbs for your money all correctly labeled. Not less than $2.00 order accepted for this.

In mixtures we supply only high class varieties and sizes are equal to those listed under name.

Our Elmwood Terrace Special Mixture at $5.00 per 100 has made friends all over the United States.

Our De Luxe Mixture made up from filing trays with at least 30 different varieties of more recent introduction, including many ruffled ones, selling at $10.00 per 100, is worth three to five times the amount if the bulbs were selected singly under label.

Our Rainbow Primulinus Mixture including all colors of the rainbow is wonderful for cut flowers for the house or any purpose. Only $3.00 per 100.

Our Butterfly Primulinus Mixture is composed of more recent introductions and includes a predominence of the Grandflorus or extra large flowering type. This is offered at $7.00 per 100 and you will be astonished at their beauty.

Fifty bulbs of any of the above mixtures will be sent for one-half the 100 price.

Early orders are urged for the reason that many of the choicest varieties are limited in quantity and are soon exhausted. Also we have more time before the spring rush to give careful attention to each item. If you wish to place an order for a larger amount than is convenient to pay for in full, just send us 25% of the total and we will hold the bulbs for balance payable not later than March 15th.

We will ship bulbs at any date requested.

You will find in parenthesis after the name of each variety the name of the originator (K. means Kunderd), (Dec. means Decorah Gardens), etc., the first number indicates the approximate number of days required after planting the bulbs before you can expect the bloom. The second number means that this variety has had expert ratings given it and the number is that percentage of 100 perfection.

About sizes. If you want the very finest, largest blooms for immediate effect, or for exhibition purposes, you must have the large size bulbs. The medium sizes will all flower the first year and give nice blooms for your vases and you will harvest No. 1 size bulbs in the fall for next years' exhibition bloom.

For those who can't afford to buy bulbs in the expensive varieties and are willing to wait a year or two, the bulblets afford a cheap opportunity. Bulblets of most varieties grow readily, but some require more expert treatment and greater patience and care, and because of this as well as other uncertainties, we do not replace bulblets unless they are proven to be untrue to name.

We strongly urge you to join the American Gladiolus Society and get the benefit of its official organ, "The Gladiolus Review," published monthly. Annual dues $2.00, which you may send to us and we will see that you are properly enrolled.
Customer Comment and a Brief Summary

The Coveted BURPEE TROPHY for “The Finest of All Varieties”
Awarded to ELMWOOD TERRACE GARDENS of Bennington, Vermont in fitting tribute to the glorious MARSHAL FOCH (Shown in Basket)

Seeking for lowest prices in placing orders is false and dangerous economy. The “saving” of absurdly small sums in original purchases has resulted in many grievous disappointments. Nowhere will you find quality to surpass that of Elmwood Terrace bulbs. Our quotations on any varieties invite comparisons.

AWARDED TO
MARGARET BREARD HAWKS
Sweepstakes Total
AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY
1923

TWICE!
Successive Awards of the Achievement Medal

In 1923, at America's greatest gladiolus show, the American Gladiolus Society Exhibition, Elmwood Terrace Gardens was awarded the Achievement Medal for the sweepstakes total, having nearly double the awards to our nearest competitor.

In 1924, at New York City, the American Gladiolus Society again conferred upon us the Achievement Medal and attached championship.

Ideal soil and climatic conditions, most advanced of scientific culture, unending watchfulness against rogues or diseases, and intense interest in the satisfaction of our customers have built this gratifying success.

The Achievement Medal, pictured at the right, was awarded us for the grand sweepstakes total of winnings at the 1924 International show of the American Gladiolus Society. It is regarded as the highest honor of all exhibitions, and duplicated our 1923 triumph.

At the left is shown the Kunderd Gold Medal awarded to Elmwood Terrace Gardens for the “largest and finest collection of Kunderd originations." The medal in the case was presented in 1924 by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The medal below, came to us in 1923 from the New England Gladiolus Society.
FOUR SAFE TESTS of REAL VALUE in PURCHASING BULBS

1. ADAPTABILITY to YOUR SOIL

A distressing number of failures have resulted from neglect of this consideration. Hundreds of enthusiastic letters from all sections of the globe show that the inherent strength and generally superior propagating qualities of Elmwood Terrace bulbs will result in splendid gardens where weaker stock is worthless.

2. PROOF of SUPERIORITY

Gambling with ordinary bulbs is an expensive experience. Elmwood Terrace Gardens products have demonstrated their superiority beyond slightest doubt at the leading shows and in wide ranges of soils and climates.

3. FREEDOM from ROGUE or DISEASE

Our extreme care during the growing season and in handling and storage, our perfected cultural methods and filing and indexing systems make sure your protection in these important regards.

4. ACTUAL COST

This item can be determined only by results. What your garden becomes and produces is the one true measure. Shrewd growers have learned that the right planting stock is much more than "half the battle" toward success and prestige. Cheap, unproved bulbs mean disheartening waste of money, time and effort.

CULTURAL SUGGESTIONS

When planting the bulbs, select a spot with full exposure to the sun but sheltered from heavy winds.

The best soil is sandy loam. If you must use lighter soil, plant the bulbs about five inches deep and provide water and fertilizer to keep them well nourished. If the soil is heavy clay, spade very deeply, incorporating a generous supply of coarse sand or coal ashes and leafmould which will lighten the soil and prevent it from packing and becoming water-soaked after rains and watering.

If your soil is sandy loam, you may use old, well-rotted stable manure which should be thoroughly mixed into the soil. A high grade potato fertilizer with an equal amount of fine bone meal serves as an excellent aid to superior growth.

After the spading and mixing has been accomplished, lay off about four inches of the soil from the top of the bed and place your bulbs four inches apart in rows eight inches apart. Push them firmly into the soil and place the soil solidly around them. This is of great assistance in making them stand up straight. Then cover with the soil that has been removed, making a depth of four inches above the bulbs.

Keep the bed raked and cultivated even before the bulbs come through and continue to cultivate all through the season.

After watering or heavy rainfalls, it is imperative that you allow no soil crust to form.

When the plants are nearly ready to bloom, an application of sheep fertilizer applied between the rows, not too near the plants, and then worked into the surface about one and one-half inches deep will be of aid in producing the largest size blooms.

Discontinue watering when plants begin to ripen but do not discontinue shallow cultivation.

Cut the spikes when the first flowers open and let them bloom in the house. Slice these cut stems diagonally across the bottoms each morning, pick off the wilted blooms and provide fresh water. Four leaves should always be left on the plant to properly mature the bulbs for the next season. Dig the bulbs before plants are too ripe and cut off tops close to bulbs. Dry well in heat and sunshine and cure thoroughly indoors for a few weeks. Then store in cool dry cellar.

FOR PURPOSES OF DECORATION

As to arrangement, if your glads are to be used primarily as cut flowers for your own home, bear in mind the colors most pleasing with your furnishings.

Provide suitable containers. Many of the exceedingly long stemmed varieties look best in tall floor baskets or vases, while the short stemmed varieties look well in shorter containers. For large low effects it is necessary to use a support of some kind. When the container used is clear glass, a large fiery glass base with perforation is inconspicuous. The tips of stems that have served their purpose in tall containers may be taken off and used most effectively in flat bowls or baskets for table decorations, using foliage or other smaller flowers to give an air of daintiness and contrast of form and color.

Grow a few clumps of "Baby's Breath," either the perennial or annual sorts or both, a few plants of ferns, asparagus, Delphinium, Archillea, Candy Tuft, etc. and you will have some of the most valuable material at hand for dressing up or embellishing your vases of glads.

For very artistic effects in blended colors use the graceful Primulini. They are less self assertive than the exhibition type of glads and blend harmoniously both in color and form with other flowers. The exhibition type is often seen to best advantage when perhaps a single stem with some graceful foliage is placed in a slender vase. Three stems or five stems make a wonderful showing. Do not try to use too many of this large type. Use odd numbers of stems rather than even numbers as the odd numbers conform better to a symmetrical, well balanced arrangement. Be careful also that the stems do not cross each other from base to tip.

Practice making your floral arrangements when you are at leisure—try them in different combinations—various containers, till you get the very best effect, then whenever you are pressed for time and your flowers must be arranged hurriedly you will know in advance just what to cut, the best container to use and the most becoming and artistic arrangement. We would strongly urge you to visit any of the big shows held near by and familiarize yourself with the varieties that are the consistent prize winners. Observe the way the entry is staged so you will be able to compete successfully yourself when opportunity affords.

Usually, or quite often, three blooms of a kind are called for, such as three light pink, three pure white without blotches or markings, three solid red, three pink with markings of other colors, etc. To have three perfect blooms of a kind all out at once it is necessary to grow at least twice or three times that many. It is also more satisfactory to grow fewer varieties so as to have more of a kind. Your garden looks less “spotty” and you have better opportunity for more beautiful floral arrangements.

OTHER “BUDS” OF SUGGESTION
First and most important, select bulbs suitable for the purpose you have in mind and providing best color harmonies. Good color contrasts are blues with creams and yellows; blues with delicate pinks; delicate pinks with whites or deeper pinks and rose; reds with whites and creams or harmonizing shades of pink. For highly ornamental bouquets, use the lovely Primulini in their wonderful rainbow hues.

The varieties described on succeeding pages comprise about one-third of our comprehensive list. Quotations on varieties not here noted will be supplied upon request.

Bulbs sent to your flower-loving friends as birthday or holiday gifts will furnish splendid, living memories from year to year.

If you desire early blooming, select the earliest varieties in largest size bulbs, and about three weeks before planting season bring your bulbs where they will have heat and light. Provide some moisture either by spreading a little soil over them and by keeping them sprinkled, or by placing the bulbs on a few folds of coarse cloth well moistened. When you are ready to plant, they will have attained shoots two or three inches long and should be set very carefully. Planting at intervals of two weeks until early summer, will assure long blooming season, or you may use bulbs of early, mid-season and late blooming to secure this result.

Rows of gladioli in the vegetable garden will prove very beautiful and useful for cutting bouquets for home decoration or for friends, thus saving several times the initial cost by eliminating the expense of purchasing flowers from the florists.

Rodents are very fond of bulbs while in storage and methods should be adopted for protection from this devastation.

Early buying is practiced by those most thoroughly acquainted with the gladiolus business. They do not take chances on disappointments and having to wait another whole year to secure some particular beauty on which they have set their hearts.

Plant a group of Mr. Mark near your iris beds and your friends will think your iris is giving a second season of bloom.

Our extreme care has made us fortunate in a minimum of errors but in the event that errors are made, the purchaser may be sure that he will not feel half so sorry as shall we and that we shall be eager to have any errors reported immediately for adjustment.

ED HOWE’S IMPRESSIONS

“Another impression was that New England is particularly favorable for the production of gladioli. One day we called at a home in Bennington, Vt. Our host said Mrs. Hawks, living next door, was packing an exhibit of gladioli to take to an exhibition in Canada, and that while she was exceedingly busy, possibly we could see it. So we went over, and saw a sight I shall long remember; hundreds of gladioli of different colors, and of great size and perfection. I was told that the lady began raising the flowers as an amusement, and had drifted into a very profitable business; that people all over the country sent to her for bulbs; that she has certain varieties as rare as a manuscript by Homer. It seems there are gladiolus enthusiasts everywhere; one paid $2,000 for 14 bulbs. A good many of these make journeys to Bennington to see a very remarkable collection. Later I heard of the result of the exhibition in Canada; Mrs. Hawks made 24 entries, and took 24 prizes. I say the notable collection as one of the brief but delightful incidents of my trip.”

(The Canadian Exhibition, to which Mr. Howe refers, was the International Show—United States and Canada—by the American Gladiolus Society, at St. Thomas.)

HERE must be reasons why so many hundreds of professional and amateur growers of the Gladiolus write that ELMWOOD TERRACE bulbs are much superior to any others they can obtain.

There must be reasons why every competitive exhibition of blooms from ELMWOOD TERRACE bulbs have resulted in such sweeping triumphs.

Experienced growers have learned that economy and satisfaction are far better served by depending on these hardier bulbs scientifically developed in this ideal soil of Southern Vermont.
